Early Intervention

A Partnership with Families and Caregivers

Together, Early Intervention and the family/caregivers develop a plan called an Individualized Family Service Plan (IFSP)

Families learn and practice strategies that support everyday routines

Early Intervention staff provides ongoing, personalized guidance and training

This a FREE service. No out-of-pocket costs to Rhode Island families.

A Long History of Creating Bright Futures

For 60 years, the Trudeau Center has been transforming lives and creating bright futures for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities across our region, and since the 80's, the Center has provided services to children and their families.

The Trudeau Center's family-focused Early Intervention program served as a national model when Early Intervention became a mandated federal program in 1987. Today, Trudeau Early Intervention is still respected as a strong community partner, proudly serving over 300 Rhode Island families annually.
